Spartanburg's Gold Mines.

The gold mines near Glendale have been attracting some attention lately. It is not proper to give such an enterprise an undue and unmerited boom. For more than balf a century it has been known that gold was to be found in this neighborhood. The Spartan will report only the facts in the rich deposit of gold ores about 30 feet below the surface. The vein is 24 inches in thickness, of a dark brown color. Average samples have been taken from this vein at this point and found to contain one penny weight to the pound of vein matter, or $2,000 to the ton. Just how far this will extend cannot now be determined, but the fact of finding the same class of ore 1,200 six weeks I was so deaf that I could not feet east on the same vein and showing the | hear thunder. in operation, both for this and other mines in the State. - Carolina Spartan.

A Deaf Mute's Speech Returns.

Joseph Henry, a New Haven deaf mute, about 29 years of age, began early in the winter to attend the pole games in New Haven. During the exciting periods of the game it was noticed that Henry jumped from his seat and attempted to shout. For a long time his efforts in this line were uncuccessful.
